Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Wednesday 24 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Turning clear and chilly overnight. Isolated showers tomorrow.

This Evening and Tonight:
Mostly dry with some clear spells overnight allowing it to turn rather chilly, with some frost possible in prone spots. However southeastern coastal counties are likely to be cloudier and milder with perhaps a few showers during the night. Minimum temperature 0 deg C (32 deg F).

Thursday:
Largely dry for most with variable amounts of cloud giving some bright or sunny spells. A few showers are possible, mainly during the afternoon. Mild and a little breezy. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Blustery on Friday with a spell of heavy rain pushing across the region. Drier but cooler on Saturday before turning cloudy and damp on Sunday. Windy throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.